

Trainer Update on Ysidro from Sam Grogan

5/16/17

Sid has been progressing very well in training, he is a very willing-minded horse with a desire to please. Although he has had his struggles in training, he always gives 100% which has allowed him to work through any problem very quickly and maintain his forward momentum in continuing to advance along. From the get go he has always wanted to be very light and responsive which has allowed him to take very well to being soft and supple in the bridle. Judging by how he has been so far to train, I think Sid would do well at most any task he is put to but would excel very well in doing a job such as cattle work or most any ranch work.
